NEW MASTERS PROGRAM TO OPEN

The College has just announced the opening of a graduate level program for the preparation of vocational rehabilitation counselors to work with the deaf. Norman Tully has been named project director.

Sponsored by a grant from the Region III Office of the Rehabilitation Services Administration, the program will prepare rehabilitation specialists in deafness for placement in existing, expanding and projected agencies, facilities and programs serving deaf clients.

The two-year program leads to a Masters of Arts degree and is designed to include extensive practicum and internship opportunities.

AMONG OURSELVES

While in the Orient to attend the International Congress on Education of the Deaf, Steve Mathis suffered a heart attack. He has been responding to treatment quite well and anticipates full recovery and resumption of his activities soon. He is permitted to have visitors, but Mrs. Mathis would appreciate a call in advance. They can be reached at their home in Baltimore at TTY or voice phone (301) 467-8693....Dusty McMillen recently gave birth to a baby boy. Both mother and son are doing fine....Wish a speedy recovery to Nancy Rigg who recently underwent surgery at

George Washington Hospital.

WFD POSTSCRIPT

Few of us were probably aware that Will Madsen of our Sign Language Programs sponsored an orientation and sign language classes for employees of the Washington Hilton Hotel in preparation for the World Congress late this summer.

Lee Conlon, the hotel sales manager, included the following remarks in a recent letter which we thought were worth sharing:

"Those classes gave a large number of the employees at the Washington Hilton a great empathy toward the problems of deafness, and to deaf people themselves. As you told us, deafness is an invisible handicap, and few of us gave much thought to it until you showed us that we were ignoring many people in our population. Our new awareness will lead some into intensive sign language training, some into working with the deaf, some will simply be more understanding. None of us are likely to say 'never mind' when a deaf person cannot understand our speech."

AROUND AND ABOUT

--New staff members are reminded that an orientation session will be held on September 24, at 2:30 p.m. For additional information, contact Bonnie Muller.

 --The Carrollton Elementary School in New Carrollton, Maryland, needs work paper for its students. Before you discard letter size paper which still has one useable side, think about saving it and dropping it off to Polly Peikoff in the Office of Alumni and Public Relations or Dick Meisegeier in the Sociology Department.
 --The Hyattsville Public Library is sponsoring a series of monthly hobby-interest programs this year called "Time Out." Geared toward young people between the ages of eight and 18, the programs will be interpreted in sign language. The world of insects will be discussed at this month's program on Saturday, September 20, at 10:30 a.m. The library is located at 6530 Adelphi Road, Hyattsville, Maryland.
 --A manila messenger envelope belonging to Frances Parsons was mistakenly sent through the campus mail. The envleope contains a number of addresses of contacts Peggy has made throughout the world. If you have seen it, please contact Peggy at Box 993.
